Storms and Bad Roads Cause Radical Advances in Heavy Farm Products.

Bad weather resulting in bad roads has Cert. placed hay at prices heretofore unheard No of. Some dealers are asking $13 and $15 per ton for the loose and baled hay. Both quotations record an advance of $1 per ton. The local grain and hay markets are entirely dependent on the outside farms for their supplies of hay. Much of this is brought into the local markets from the neighboring farms. Storms have rendered the country roads almost impassable and for this reason no hay is finding its way into the markets. Utah poistoes are scarce few shipmants have impassable and for this reason no hay is finding its way into the markets. Utah potatoes are scarce, few shipments having been received by local dealers for several weeks. They are selling strong at $1.15 and $1.25 per hundred pounds in the wholesale markets and 75 cents per bushel in the retail stores. Utah celery is practically off the markets, but a few shipments arrive occasionally. The stock shown, while fair only, sells at 90 cents per dozen bunches wholesale and at 5 and 10 cents per bunch in the retail markets. Ranch butter at 20 cents per pound was the only new offering displayed yesterday. The butter had a tempting appearance and was wrapped neatly in solid moulds. Strictly fresh eggs are not to be had at any price, although a closely candled storage egg sells as low as 25 cents per dozen. The fish markets are fairly well supplied. Mussels, the first shown for some time, are offered at 15 cents per pound. Another new offering displayed in the fish stands is in the shape of small mackerel. These sell at the same price. The fruit and vegetable markets are stationary with no new offerings. markets are stationary with no new of-
